MISSION

The Foreign Policy Research Institute is dedicated to bringing the insights of scholarship to bear on the foreign policy and national security challenges facing the United States. It seeks to educate the public, teach teachers, train students, and offer ideas to advance U.S. national interests based on a nonpartisan, geopolitical perspective that illuminates contemporary international affairs through the lens of history, geography, and culture.

Educating the American Public: FPRI was founded on the premise that an informed and educated citizenry is paramount for the U.S. to conduct a coherent foreign policy. Today, we live in a world of unprecedented complexity and ever-changing threats, and as we make decisions regarding the nation's foreign policy, the stakes could not be higher. FPRI offers insights to help the public understand this volatile world by publishing research, hosting conferences, and holding dozens of public events and lectures each year.

Preparing Teachers: Unique among think tanks, FPRI offers professional development for high school teachers through its Madeleine and W.W. Keen Butcher History Institutes, a series of intensive weekend-long conferences on selected topics in U.S. and world history and international relations. These nationally known programs equip educators to bring lessons of a new richness to students across the nation.

Training the Next Generation of Thinkers: At FPRI, we are proud to play a role in providing students—whether in high school, college, or graduate school—with a start in the fields of international relations, policy analysis, and public service. Interns gain experience in research, editing, writing, public speaking, and critical thinking.

Offering Ideas: We count among our ranks over 100 affiliated scholars located throughout the nation and the world. They are open-minded, ruthlessly honest, and proudly independent. If you ask ten FPRI scholars for their opinion on an issue, you are likely to receive eleven different responses.

LOCAL, NATIONAL, AND GLOBAL REACH

FPRI is a platform for over 100 scholars, who provide timely analysis of contemporary foreign policy and national security challenges.

Their scholarship appears in over a half dozen in-house publication series. Our scholars are featured in media outlets across the globe.
